Milton J. Paris offers business management consulting and brings 40 years of experience to help small to mid-size business owners increase their sales.

Milton Paris, was born in Brooklyn, NY, the youngest of four sons. He is a graduate of Gonzaga University, State of Washington, where he received a Basketball scholarship. He has been both President and Vice-President of Sales for three companies. Milton knows how to work with salespeople, "one-on-one" on the road, as well as conducting seminars with CEO's, sales associates and various business groups. He is a former radio host and producer of "Getting Ahead in Business" and "Aim For the Sky". These are the only live talk shows in New Jersey and New York that discussed all areas of business-not only how to climb the ladder of success, but how to increase your business. Milton is available to speak at business events and participate in a range of industry conferences.

Milton has written a successful motivational book "Two Hundred and Fifty Statements and Thoughts to Live By in Sales". His articles have been published in various newspapers and he is currently writing a column "Getting Ahead" for Gannett publications. Milton has given presentations to organizations and professional associations on various topics.

Milton and his wife, Susan, live in New Jersey. They have two sons and four grandsons.
